Rotarians and Lions Enjoy Fun Programs

Two of Statesboro's civic clubs strayed from the usual last Monday as local Lions and Rotarians lapsed to programs designed to make the most of the trials and tribulations attached to the task of making a living.

With their regular program broken down, the Lions turned to Gordon Franklin, president, and Kermit R. Carr for an emergency program. Kermit pulled from the grab bag a reversed quiz program. His quiz was designed so that instead of paying the club member the club member paid the club for being unable to answer the question asked. In this manner, the club's treasury picked up more than a dollar in its members' larceny answers.

Larry Palmer, secretary of the Savannah Lions club, and John Litch, of Savannah, were visitors at the Lions club for its regular program Monday night.

The part fun and frivolity play in their lives, placed D. B. Turner in charge of their program and he turned up with a musical program featuring Zack Henderson and Mrs. Henderson. Zack astonished his fellow Rotarians by performing on the mouth organ. Mrs. Henderson played the xylophone and an instrument she called a "to-nette." She sang several selections.

Lieut. W. A. Amason, Dr. O. F. Whitman and Coach Red Tyson were guests of the club.

SENTENCE SERMON

There are those to whom a sense of religion has come in storm and tempest; there are those who have summoned amidst scenes of revelry and idle vanity; there are those, too, who have heard its "still small voice" amid rural leisure and placid retirement. But perhaps the knowledge which causeth not to err is most frequent—impressed upon the mind during the season of affliction.—Walter Scott.

FOR YOUNG MEN ONLY

THIS WEEK the United States Navy embarks on a brand new idea. It is selling itself to the young men in this country between the ages of 17 and 31 through the best known medium in the world—newspaper advertising.

There begins in this week's issue of every weekly newspaper in the state of Georgia published in cities under 50,000 population an advertising campaign pointing out the advantages the United States Navy have to offer young men of sound body and mind.

At a meeting held in Macon last week more than 200 newspaper editors pledged co-operation with the United States Navy in helping sell the Navy to the young men of Georgia. It was not an idle pledge. For every editor in the state of Georgia realizes the necessity of securing and training young men at this time. This aside from the unlimited benefits the young man receives during his period of training.

In a statement to the nation's young men recently, Frank Knox, Secretary of the U. S. Navy, said: "Never in the history of the United States has there been a greater opportunity for loyal young Americans to serve their country and build their own future than right now. Today your country is engaged in an all-out effort to build a two-ocean Navy—the mightiest the world has ever known. Battleships, cruisers, destroyers, aircraft carriers—every ten days a new warship slides down the ways. And every new ship offers countless new opportunities to red-blooded young Americans."

The advertising campaign as planned gives every young American between 17 and 31 an opportunity to take advantage of them.

Read the ad. You will find it on another page in this week's Herald. Clip the coupon and bring it to The Herald office, or mail it in, and receive the book entitled "Everything You Want to Know About Life in the U. S. Navy." It is a 25-page book describing life in the Navy. It tells of the opportunities to secure, without cost, training that is worth $15,000. There are forty-five trades and vocations for a man in the Navy to choose from. By the end of a first enlistment a man can be earning as much as $126 a month. All this in addition to the fun that goes with travel and adventures attached to being the U. S. Navy.

Get your copy of "Everything You Want to Know About Life in the U. S. Navy."

BLUE DEVILS MAKE DEBUT

TOMORROW NIGHT the "Blue Devils," the name by which our local high school football team loves to be called, will take the field against their first foe, Monticello.

Eleven boys will line up under bright lights and at the sound of a whistle will give their all for dear old Statesboro High. Which is as it should be. Eleven boys, with more on the sidelines trained to replace anyone of them in case of need, taught the fundamentals of that great game—football. And, at the same time they are taught the fundamentals of that game, they acquire the greatest training of all, that of "playing the game." The proper acknowledgment of success and the gracious acceptance of defeat.

The people of Statesboro have always been good about supporting their high school athletic teams. So there is no need to say, "Turn out tomorrow night," but it is enough merely to remind them that "the Blue Devils are playing Monticello on the local field tomorrow night." There'll be a crowd.

THURSDAY night of last week we went to bed with a new book and read well into the early morning hours. Gradually we became aware of a gentle buzz like that of a pesky mosquito just over our head. A strong believer in preparation and "shoot on sight," we we began setting out lookouts for that mosquito. But failed to find it. We settled back to our book and that buzz became louder and louder. It came from the corner of the room and then we knew. An airplane flying high and fast. Stretched out there in bed we thanked God that there was no need for an air raid alarm. . . no need to rush into an air raid shelter. . .

no fear for the members of our family. . . no dread that any moment we might hear the scream of a bomb seeking its mark. A wonderful feeling. We lifted our book and picked up the story where we left off, barely conscious of the faintest drone of that airplane winging its way high above in a starlit sky.

to meet Frances Blackwell, of Home, Ga. Frances had come to Statesboro to go to the Teachers College and because she is as progressive as a picture, "Tater" is as proud as punch over her. She is his niece, the daughter of his and lived with "Tater," and our only thought was that "if you're going to live with your Uncle 'Tater," he wrote every night. And she told her diary all. Finishing school, it was not long before she up and married. "Dear Diary," she wrote. . . and recorded her marriage. She now has a little girl 3 years old who has become the heroine in her diary. And now on nights, instead of going to the movies, mother, father and daughter read and discuss from mother's diary and find it as interesting as living.

OUR FRIEND ("Tater") Ruck-

Thursday of last week and grabbed us by the arm and literally dragged us to his school bus. Pushing us out the open door he invited us
